Performance Review

In the one month period ending 30 September 2025, the Fund's I shares returned 0.40% (net of fees)¹, while the benchmark returned 0.33%.

Performance was largely driven by strategic positioning within spread sectors, with investment grade corporate credit delivering strong results. The Fund's macro positioning also contributed to positive performance.

The euro area yield curve steepening position detracted, as curve flattening pressures intensified amid central banks remaining wary of easing too quickly, moderating growth, and persistent inflation concerns.

Exposure to euro area sovereign spreads had a small positive impact on performance from peripheral European spreads as headlines were supportive.

Exposure to quasi-sovereign spreads added modestly, offsetting small negatives in core European spreads.

The allocation to investment grade corporate credit performed well, mainly within financials where spreads tightened. The sector also benefited from strong carry and resilient issuer fundamentals.

Market Review

One year after its decisive 50 basis point (bps) "first cut," the U.S. Federal Reserve (Fed) delivered a more restrained 25 bps reduction this September, lowering its target rate to a range of 4.00%-4.25%. While speculation swirled about multiple dissenters favouring a larger cut, only one voting member broke from consensus—underscoring the Fed's cautious stance.

Market expectations ahead of the 17 September policy meeting were the most dovish since April's post-Liberation Day turmoil, yet the Fed's decision reminded investors that policymakers remain committed to maintaining positive real interest rates until inflation expectations are fully anchored. Despite progress in disinflation, with core personal consumption expenditures (PCE) at 2.9% and unemployment near 4.2%,² the Fed signalled that inflation's "last mile" remains the hardest.

Fed's Measured Cut Flattens Curve, Signals Caution

The Fed's first rate cut of 2025—of 25 bps—tempered expectations for aggressive easing. Despite early-month weak jobs data, stronger activity later in the month reduced urgency for further cuts. The U.S. yield curve flattened, with long-maturity Treasurys outperforming.

Global Divergence in G7 Central Bank Policy

While the Fed and Bank of Canada eased rates, the European Central Bank, Bank of England and Bank of Japan held steady. Canada's cut reflected domestic weakness, while Europe grappled with political gridlock and inflation persistence. Japan maintained its cautious hiking stance.

Dollar Mixed as Foreign Exchange Markets React to Policy Shifts

The Bloomberg Dollar Index was flat, but the U.S. dollar weakened against high-carry and cyclical currencies. The euro edged higher, while New Zealand dollar and Canadian dollar lagged amid diverging central bank paths and growth outlooks.

EM Debt Strengthens on Easing and Inflows

Emerging markets (EM) debt gained as the Fed and EM central banks eased policy. Argentina and Indonesia faced political risks, but strong inflows supported hard and local currency debt. Credit spreads tightened across sovereign and corporate segments.

Investment Grade Credit Tightens Amid Strong Demand and M&A Surge

Global investment grade spreads narrowed by 5 bps, reversing August's widening. Financials and consumer non-cyclicals led gains. Merger and acquisition (M&A) activity surged, highlighted by a record $55 billion leveraged buyout of Electronic Arts. Technicals remained strong despite elevated issuance.

High Yield and Convertibles Ride Risk-On Sentiment

High yield outperformed investment grade credit, supported by firm demand and record issuance. Convertible securities rallied with equities, with new issuance surpassing 2024's full-year total. Dispersion fell to its lowest since January, reflecting broad sector strength.

Agency MBS Outperforms as Banks Rebuild Holdings

Agency mortgage-backed securities (MBS) outperformed Treasury bonds. Spreads tightened, and bank holdings rose. Mortgage fundamentals remained solid, with low delinquency and limited refinancing activity.

Securitized Credit Resilient Despite Mixed Signals

Asset backed securities (ABS), commercial mortgage-backed securities (CMBS), and residential mortgage-backed securities (RMBS) issuance rebounded post-summer. CMBS strength came from logistics and luxury hotels; Class B office remained weak. RMBS spreads narrowed on stable home prices and strong credit fundamentals.

Portfolio Activity

The Fund initiated an underweight duration position by reducing exposure to euro area duration, aiming to manage interest rate risk more effectively.

The Fund increased the overweight to Spanish spreads following late-September credit rating action.

The Fund reduced its allocation to investment grade credit across some of the tightest names, particularly within financials and industrials in Europe.

Strategy and Outlook

As we enter the final quarter of 2025, the outlook across fixed income sectors reflects cautious optimism amid evolving macro conditions and central bank policy shifts. In developed markets, duration positioning remains neutral outside Japan, with selective opportunities in Canadian and Australian government bonds. The U.S. yield curve steepeners are being trimmed, while Japanese exposure is shifting toward short duration and long inflation breakevens. In foreign exchange, a short U.S. dollar stance against high-beta currencies is favoured, supported by global growth differentials and monetary easing cycles outside the U.S.

Emerging markets debt continue to benefit from supportive fundamentals and attractive valuations, particularly in local currency debt. Real yield differentials and reform-oriented policy agendas are drawing sustained inflows, though country-level selectivity remains critical. We believe a softening U.S. dollar and cautious Fed stance further enhance the appeal of EM assets, but investors must navigate idiosyncratic risks and policy divergence.

Corporate credit maintains a cautiously constructive tone, with solid fundamentals and supportive technicals offsetting tight spreads and elevated issuance. Investment grade issuers are expected to weather a low-growth environment, while high yield benefits from resilient earnings and attractive yields despite lingering inflation concerns. Convertible bonds remain well positioned, offering asymmetric return profiles and equity sensitivity that likely reward selectivity and structure quality.

In securitized products, agency MBS is expected to outperform as spreads tighten and valuations remain compelling. Securitized credit spreads should stay stable, with performance driven by carry and resilient fundamentals. Residential mortgage credit securities are favoured, while consumer ABS and commercial real estate securities warrant caution due to interest rate pressures and sector-specific challenges.
